

Dr. Kongdan (Katy) Oh Hassig
Research Staff Member
Institute for Defense Analyses

Katy Oh has been a Research Staff Member at the Institute for Defense Analyses (IDA) since 1997, and a Non-Resident Senior Fellow at the Brookings Institution since 1997. She is also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the Korea Working Group of the United States Institute of Peace, the Board of Directors of the United States Committee of the Council for Security Cooperation in the Asia-Pacific, and she is a co-founder and co-director of The Korea Club of Washington, D.C. Before coming to IDA, she was employed as a Political Scientist in the International Policy Department of the RAND Corporation in Santa Monica, California.

She received her B.A. at Sogang University and her M.A. at Seoul National University. She subsequently earned an M.A. and Ph.D. in Asian Studies at the University of California, Berkeley. She has taught courses at the University of San Diego, Dominican College, the University of Maryland University College, George Mason University, and George Washington University.

In addition to many professional reports, she has authored and co-authored numerous articles on Korean affairs; most recently, “North Korea in 2009: The Song Remains the Same” (Asian Survey, to be published in early 2010), “Putting Together the North Korea Puzzle” (Foreign Policy Research Institute E-Note, June 2009), “A Decade of ‘Sunshine’ in Korea: What’s the Result?” (Asian Conflict Reports, February 2009), “North Korea’s Clash of Cultures” (North Korean Review, Fall 2008), “U.S.-ROK: The Forgotten Alliance” (Brookings Northeast Asia Commentary, October 2008), “Golden Eggs” (The World Today, May 2007), and “The Twin Peaks of Pyongyang” (ORBIS, Winter 2006).

With her co-author, Ralph Hassig, she published the book, North Korea through the Looking Glass (Brookings Institution Press, 2000) and most recently, The Hidden People of North Korea: Everyday Life in the Hermit Kingdom (Rowman & Littlefield, November 2009).

She resides in northern Virginia with her husband and research partner, Ralph Hassig.
