

Steven G. Alness
Chief, Geospatial Program Office
Department of Homeland Security

Mr. Alness is the Chief of the Geospatial Program Office and Program Manager for the DHS Office of Infrastructure Protection, Infrastructure Information Collection Division within the National Protection and Programs Directorate. In addition, Mr. Alness recently served as Senior Geospatial-Intelligence Advisor to the DHS Under Secretary of the Preparedness Directorate.

Mr. Alness has been employed by the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency (NGA) and its predecessor Agencies, National Imagery and Mapping Agency (NIMA) and Defense Mapping Agency (DMA) for 18 years. Mr. Alness has held a variety of production and management positions across the spectrum of geospatial activities, including production, production management, system management, system administration.

Mr. Alness started working Homeland Security and Homeland Defense issues September 2001 and is currently detailed to DHS from the NGA. He has technical expertise in surveying, photogrammetry, precise point positioning, geospatial-intelligence analysis and system development.