

For more than 35 years, David Hartman has produced, written and hosted scores of award winning documentaries for the networks, public television and cable TV. He regularly creates programs about aviation and space for EAA at Oshkosh; the Naval Air Museum, Pensacola; the Flight Test Historical Foundation at Edwards AFB; the Aviation Hall of Fame in Dayton and the Naval Institute at Annapolis. His profile of test pilots following the tragic crash of a B-1 bomber at Edwards in 1984 earned him the Aviation and Space Journalism Award and a National News and Documentary Emmy for writing. As the original host of Good Morning America, for over 11 years, he conducted more than 12,000 interviews with subjects ranging from world leaders to families in the American heartland. In March 2010, as panel moderator, he accompanied Neil Armstrong, Gene Cernan, Bob Gilliland, Jim Lovell and Steve Ritchie on a morale boosting tour visiting the troops in Southwest Asia and Northern Arabian Sea. In October, 2010 he accompanied the same three astronauts on another tour of SW Asia bases. He holds a BA in Economics and served three years active duty as an officer in the Strategic Air Command.
