

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE

Laura L. Galante

Cyber Executive and Director of the Cyber Threat Intelligence Integration Center

Laura Galante serves as the Cyber Executive and Director of the Cyber Threat Intelligence Integration Center (CTIIC) for the Office of the Director for National Intelligence. CTIIC is responsible for integrating cyber threat intelligence collection and analysis across the US Intelligence Community (IC), guiding the IC's strategic investments in cyber, and coordinating intelligence support to respond to national cyber incidents in collaboration with the National Security Council.

Ms. Galante brings extensive security industry experience to her current role. From 2017 to 2021, she assisted multiple Ukrainian government agencies in improving their cybersecurity operations, directed an international task force to monitor cyber and information threats to Ukraine's 2019 presidential election, and served as an expert witness in multiple cyber warfare trials.

Ms. Galante previously served as the Director of Global Intelligence at cybersecurity firm, Mandiant (formerly FireEye Inc). Her teams discovered and attributed state and criminal cyber operations including the Russian military's "APT28." Her work included developing intelligence products to improve the security posture of Fortune 500 companies, critical infrastructure providers, non-profits, government agencies, and international partners. Prior to her role at Mandiant, Ms. Galante led a contractor team analyzing Russian cyber capabilities at the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Ms. Galante began her career at the Department of State. She holds a B.A. in Foreign Affairs and Italian from the University of Virginia and a J.D. from the Catholic University of America.
