Sean Gallagher

Vice President, Intelligence Community Support

Sean Gallagher is Vice President of Intelligence Community Support at In-Q-Tel (IQT). He is responsible for outreach and account activity while accelerating the use of IQT portfolio company technologies into the Intelligence Community's mission and technology infrastructure.

Prior to joining IQT, Gallagher was Vice President of Strategic Development at Altamira Technologies Corporation, where he worked with senior technologists to architect and develop the company's leading-edge technology in alignment with strategic and tactical customer requirements.

Previously, Gallagher worked for the National Security Agency as a civilian finance professional, most recently serving as the Chief of Financial Support for the NSA's Information Technology Directorate. Sean began his career in the Intelligence Community in 1998 serving as a Cryptologic Officer in the U.S. Navy.

Gallagher holds a B.B.A. in Finance and Business Economics from the University of Notre Dame and received his MBA from the Smith School of Business at the University of Maryland, College Park.