

Amy Brinson earned her B.A. from The University of New Hampshire and miniMBAs in Marketing from Rutgers University and Batteries from Battery Associates. Amy has been with the Soteria team for over seven years, bringing a background in customers service and management. As VP of Soteria's Consortium, she focuses on promoting collaboration through battery safety initiatives.

Soteria Battery Innovation Group: Powering
Battery Safety Through Collaboration

Soteria's vision is to empower the safe use of all batteries. Through our patented technologies and a global network of innovators, we're advancing safety across the battery system. We help identify battery safety gaps, connect partners together, and promote the access of proven safety technologies to empower our partners to design for safety from the start.